

CASUAL PHILOSOPHY

A glass man is one who has got to a show on a piece without telling about getting a free ticket. We wanted that if a man will work hard eight hours a day he will have time to tell his friends. The man who says "I don't go" is not asked to give his statement but is asked to give his name. "I'll go." A woman with a five-centage dress who says to walk. Small people who don't like them selves expect others to like. It's such an easy matter to be good that lots of people prefer to be bad. You can get along with anybody if only you let them have their own way. It keeps innocent wonderfully when people call on you whom you do not like. Never attempt to tell anyone anything while waiting for the dinner bell to ring. Remember if you are in a room with the two truth to show where it is worth it to work. Sneering in the streets is a delightful business, but one always has to run in with it. Every time a man ever indulges in luxuriant people wonder what kind of a wife he's got. Many a boasted family tree is merely a escaper. Some faith is blind, and some more is near-sighted. When doctors disagree it's time to call in the coroner. An ounce of tomorrow is worth a pound of yesterday. Any married man will tell you that outside his is as common as Mrs. Rob. The Lord will provide, but don't let that influence you to turn down a free lunch. The fellow who says he rarely drinks is found never forgets to drink. The great trouble with the skeleton in the closet is that it hasn't sense enough to stay there. The indignation of your friends doesn't keep warm as long as a bottled potato. Tennis are a woman's weapon, but here lately they don't seem to be very effective. The only trouble with experience as a teacher is that the knowledge she also gives comes too late. It is the opinion of every mother that her non-brother would never learn that his wife is looking bad unless some of the neighbors told him. When an engaged man buys his girl very inexpensive presents because he is saving for their future, it seems to come very easy for her to imagine he is saving only for his own. It is dangerous to neglect a cold. How often do we hear it remarked: "It's only a cold" and a few days later leaves that the man is flat on his back with pneumonia. This is of such common occurrence that a cold, how ever slight, should not be disregarded. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy counteracts any tendency of a cold to result in pneumonia, and has gained its great popularity and extensive sale by its prompt cures of this most common ailment. It always cures and is pleasant to take. For sale by F. J. Hamner, W. B. Frame, Ardmore Drug Co., Bonner & Bonner. Double Flowers. Nearly all the double flowers of our days were first found wild. Double buttercups, double primroses, double daisies, double roses and many other things were first discovered among their wild fellows and introduced into the gardens. The florist, however, can produce double flowers. He watches this tendency in nature. If a flower usually has five petals, and he discovers that some of the stamens have come what of a petal like character, the pollen is taken from these flowers and others in a normal condition fertilized with this pollen. The tendency, once started, is then given to the progeny. Almost any species of plant will in this way be capable of producing double flowers. It is surprising that, with this knowledge, rare attempts at this line of improvement in ordinary garden flowers are not made. There is not much difference between genuine patience and subtle endurance as between the smile of lips and the malicious gnashing of the teeth. -W. S. Fisher.

Whales. Whales, though they are mammals, are fitted to live like fishes in water. The true whales are of two kinds of families—the sperm whale, which has teeth in the lower jaw, and the baleen whale, which has none of the first kind. There are two species of the latter and the sperm, which when full grown measures from seventy to eighty feet. The capture of this animal is attended with greater danger than that of the whalebone or Greenland whale on account of its formidable teeth.
